The warm air over the land is less dense and begins to rise. Low pressure is created. The air pressure over the water is higher with colder dense air, which moves to occupy the space created over the land. The cooler air that comes along is called a sea breeze.

What is a land breeze? What is a sea breeze? | Eschooltoday

The warm air over the land will rise throughout the day, causing low pressure at the surface. Over the water, high surface pressure will form because of the colder air. To compensate, the air will sink over the ocean. The wind will blow from the higher pressure over the water to lower pressure over the land causing the sea breeze.

thunderstorms occurring about 1/3rd of the way across the peninsula. Light west wind (5-10 mph) keeps the sea breeze front confined to the eastern coast but also makes for more widespread thunderstorms along the boundary. Stronger west winds can prevent the sea breeze front from moving onshore or forming at all, so no thunderstorms will occur.
