A teen court is a problem-solving court within the juvenile justice system where teens charged with certain types of offenses can be sentenced by a jury of same-aged peers. Their purpose is to provide an alternative disposition for juveniles who have committed a delinquent act, have committed a minor offense, or have been charged with a misdemeanor, and are otherwise eligible for diversion. Depending on their training, community support, and agreements with traditional court systems, most teen o

Teen Court empowers youth to work on ways to reduce crime and violence in their schools and communities. "It's been found that a youth violator of the law is less likely to repeat the harms done when a jury of their peers decides the appropriate punishment," Dr. Tim Beam, Lincoln County Schools director of federal programs, student services and pre-school said. "Teen Court is designed to do that.

Teen Court is a diversion program designed to offer an alternative to formal juvenile court proceedings. At Teen Court's sentencing phase trials, trained high school student volunteers using a Peer Jury format, roughly modeled after the process used by a grand jury, perform the courtroom roles of clerk, bailiff, juror and advocate. Teen Court defendants are offenders generally aged 12-17, who voluntarily agree to participate.
